

RICHMOND KILL BAYS BY TEAMWORK, SPEED

By BILL HENDERSON

Richmond's better teamwork and speed allowed them to leave Glenelg flat after the first term at the Bay Oval today.

Glen.	5-2	7-2	11-2	12-3	75

The backing up of players all over the ground created opportunities and Glenelg matched them only in the first term.

Glenelg fell apart completely up forward after the departure of Marker early in the second term with a leg injury.

Fred Phillis did a remarkable job with the opportunities he got to get 4-0.

His run on the ball in the last term was not surprising.

An outstanding feature for Glenelg was the performance of Kevin Rowe at full back.

He forced Rex Hunt to go so far out to get kicks that he could do no better than 2-6.

Open well

The Bays opened just as strongly as Richmond, matching them in every phase of the game, except, perhaps, in the roving division.

Pattinson tried hard, but could not match the brilliance of Bartlett and Brown, especially around the scoring area.

Even in this term, Richmond showed that they did not waste effort getting the ball in scoring range.

Marker was cutting the visitors' defence to pieces as he broke clear to score.

Beginning the second term, the Bays lost Marker, and their attack lost any initiative it had gained.

On the other hand Richmond, with their replacing of players, won an ascendancy.

Davenport, who came on at half forward was very damaging, and posted three goals for the term.

But he was not so effective as his counterpart on the other flank, John Northey.

Northey seemed to read the game so well that scoring goals was nothing but chicken feed.

Another major asset was K. Smythe, their third rover, who replaced Bill Brown to combine well with Kevin Bartlett.

STAN WICKHAM'S SportTalk

REPLACE RULE SUCCESSFUL

It was interesting to note the success of the move during last week's interstate trial football games of replaced players being able to return to the field.

Each club named about 23 players and all were given a run, some going back for two or three runs.

The most significant part of the whole thing was that the player appeared to play ever so much better when he went back the second time after the coach had had a few words with him.

At Glenelg last Saturday, East Perth coach Jack Sheedy used players in a shuttle service, repeatedly whipping players on and off.

Geoff Motley used it freely during North Adelaide's two trials against St. Kilda and Fitzroy and is loud in his praise for the possible introduction of such a move.

I would like to see this discussed at the next ANFC meeting as well as the kicking out of bounds on the full law and the throwing the ball back to the player on the full law.

Only if they help the game should new rules be introduced, and I feel that these will help.

Right on the ball!

Last Saturday morning, Jack Sheedy, East Perth coach, walked into a sports store to buy a yellow Burley football (the type used in WA).

"What do you want a ball for? Aren't Glenelg supplying them?" inquired a curious salesman.

"I think Kerley is putting one over on me and I want to be ready," answered Sheedy.

"I thought that Kerl used the Burley over here no... and I didn't bother about bringing a ball, but last night at practice I accidentally found out that he is going to use the red Faulkner ball tomorrow. So, I'm ready for him now."

The way East Perth went, they could have used a ping pong ball. They were good.

Menace

Bartlett seemed to pop up all over the ground, and was a menace to Glenelg for most of the game.

The Bays made a few changes in the third term, which brought Richmond back to them a little.

Marker

Ebert to half-forward created passages of play to their credit, and he gave Fred Phillis more opportunities.

Even with Rowe at full back and Wayne Phillis at centre half-back, both defending strongly, Glenelg could not stop the Richmond onslaught.

The last term was almost a forgone conclusion, especially with Richmond bringing back such big guns as Northey and Bill Brown.

Brown, who played at centre wing during the third term, acted as runner in the second, and came back to roving in the last.

In the meantime, Kevin Bartlett carried everything before in the roving division. With Billy Brown back, they both showed their brilliance in scoring when resting.

The scoreboard showed how the game was going, with Richmond kicking 6-9 to the Bays 1-1.

The Richmond side in this last term showed the importance of backing up.

They cut the Glenelg side to pieces with this and their speed.
