

PORT GREAT IN WIN

Round 2, 1970

Port's cool destruction of Glenelg on the Bays' own ground was clearly the highlight of today's league football round.

They used great flow-on football, started by creative handball, solid defence and superiority up forward, to win almost all over the ground.

Not one Glenelg player was able to get on top in his position, although Marker, at times, looked dangerous.

But, even his game did not reach the heights of Ebert's last term.

Sturt threatened to make a one-horse race of the game at Unley when they shot to an eight-goal lead at half-time.

Although Carman held centre half-back, Shearman's dominance at centre, the brilliance of Endersbee and Tilbrook on the half-forward flanks, and Nelson's dashing defence gave Sturt almost complete control.

The switch of Coligan to centre half-forward transformed the Redlegs' attack in the third quarter when they outscored Sturt 5-3 to 1-6.

The Blues resumed control in the last term but they were forced to struggle and did not at any stage after half-time move with the smooth confidence of the first two terms.

West, Torrens drew to within two points of West Adelaide in the third quarter but the Blood and Tars steadied well.

Despite a ragged start, the game at Richmond developed into a real crowd pleaser.

Burkett was the Westie star, and with Jonas in deadly form at full forward the home side held on to win by 10 points.

The ability to gain deeper penetration with their kicking and therefore create more scoring potential attacks was the chief factor in North's win over South at Adelaide Oval.

This was sufficient to offset losing in every goal to goal position and being shadowed in ruck.

Their "flow-on" style brought two and three players at a time into the game to maintain pressure so that South finally gave ground.

PECKER PAGE

Woodville won the rucks and rovers convincingly to set the side going and with Allen controlling centre and the defence letting little through, they pulled away from Centrals quarter by quarter.

The smoothness of the Peckers' attack was a feature of their play while their application of handball was well controlled and effective.

Here you are kids — the second of our new "Football Star" series designed specially to fit into your footy scrapbook.

It was a "toss up" between playing for Glenelg—or going on a football trip to Western Australia.

John Sandland decided to turn out for the Bays—and made a splendid debut last Saturday.

He kicked 4-3 playing centre half-forward against Woodville and was generally accepted as best man afield.

Last season John Sandland was a strong-point in South Australia's smashing win over Victoria in the Amateur League interstate game at Alberton Oval.

As a University star approaching the 1970 season, Sandland had a mortgage on the centre half-forward position for the Australian Amateur carnival in Perth next July, in which SA could win its first Amateur carnival since 1957.

Young Sandland had no doubt it would be a "great trip."

Vacancy

"It was something that had to be resolved," Sandland said. "I'm in final year of a civil engineering course at Adelaide University."

"Glenelg, it seemed, had a vacancy for a centre half-forward. So I decided to have a crack at league football."

What was the difference between Amateur League football and his first taste of league football?
"Overall, the game did not seem much different," Sandland says. "But the increased pressure of league football makes it more demanding."

"I became tired towards the end of the third quarter. But after the changeover rest, then the roar of the crowd, I got my second wind."

Sandland, 21, and a well built 6.11 and 13.3, was not wearing the Tiger jumper for the first time.

Building future at Bay

He played in the Thirds in his first year at university.

What feature of his game last week gave him the greatest pleasure?

"The ability to take marks (13 of them). This should give me confidence to develop ground play."

Coach Neil Kerley is not hurrying that department. He is letting Sandland develop his own game.

Coming into a new side can often make a younger player feel "out of it."

Not so John Sandland.

He had played at Brighton High School with the Phillis brothers, Fred and Wayne, and Ian Hockridge—a teammate in University and State Amateur teams.

Sandland has spent most of his football in the forward lines, but he was at centre with Brighton Primary.

Then, at 15 and 16, he "sprang up" several inches and began to develop toward his present impressive build.

As a civil engineering student, Sandland leads a busy week.

"Three hours' study each night and if I happen to go out on a week night I make up the 'cramming' at the weekend," he says.

In the off season he likes to surf and play top hardcourt tennis for Glenelg.

—Ray Barber.

As a result the Magpies won well in a high scoring game.

The whole Port machine backed up well. They used handball to advantage and disposed of the ball accurately to their forwards.

Glenelg could not halt Port's drive nor breach their defence. Try as they would, they just could not get their stars into the game.

Phillis was never allowed to become prominent, while Marker, who won centre until three-quarter time, was held back in the final quarter—unable to give the Bays the drive they needed.

Up to half-time it was good football from both sides—neither team being able to create sufficient lead.

Something rare happened to the Port side. By half-time they had a score on the board that was similar to their game scores of recent years.

Rovers Haslam and Leal both had four goals to this point.

Port quickly shut out Anesbury, who had started brilliantly.

In the second term it appeared that the Bays were clicking, especially in attack. They began to find Fred Phillis.

But as earlier, Ellway played close. Spoiling well, he forced the full forward too far out for kicks.

This was noticeable more in the third term when Fred Phillis was shifted to centre half-forward. But Elleway went with him.

The trend of the game changed at the 18-minute mark in the third term just after the Bays had wrested back the lead from Port.

Port's new half forward from the northern country area became a real force at half forward.

He eclipsed State half back Colbey to give Port a safe avenue of attack.

From here on Port could do no wrong.

They switched Ebert to centre in the last term and he burnt.

He contested knock-outs, marked well, and drove the ball in to give the Magpies a greater portion of the play.

Found answer

Port's rover Haslam gave them his best effort yet—he was best afield. His seven goals from as many shots is what Port has been lacking in past years.

Leal assisted him well but ran out of puff, while Port's back line was well led by Clayton, Elleway, and Errey.

Across half-forward Port appear to have found the answer. Woite took some freak marks and brought many players into prominence with his play.

Alongside him, Sorrell was clever in the way he broke away from Colbey after half-time.

It is hard to think where Cahill and Freeman will fit into this side after today.

Glenelg was best across centre where Marker and Rosewarne both played well. But their attacking moves were not frequent enough.

Across half-back they fell down badly and only Christ Hunt attempted to stop Port's last half burst.
