Bulldogs reel in fragile Glenelg

By LEO SCHLINK

SANFL pacesetter Central District yesterday overcame an unsteady start to wear down flashy Glenelg to post another tradesman-like win at Football Park.

Unbalanced by Glenelg's first-half flamboyance, Central kicked 11.7 to 4.3 in the second hour to register a bullocking 31-point win over the Bays.

The Bulldogs' victory was soured, however, by a finger injury to centre half-forward Simon Luhrs. The former Brisbane forward underwent surgery last night to repair a compound fracture of the top knuckle on his left index finger.

The win was Central's 15th of the season, but drew scant praise from coach Alan Stewart, who lamented the club's lack of spark during the first half.

"I was disappointed with the performance, but I guess when you realise we kicked 11 goals to four after half-time, then perhaps I'm being a bit harsh," he said.

Glenelg, hoping to celebrate captain Nick Chigwidden's 200th match in style, began brilliantly.

A seven-goal second quarter shunted the accurate Tigers to a 15-point lead at half-time.

Spurred on by centreman Mark Viska's aggression, Glenelg punished wasteful Central late in the quarter with goals to centre half-forward Jim West, ruck-rover Phil McGuinness and busy half-forward Justin Scripps.

Scripps, who proved too elusive for Christopher Pyman in delivering four first-half goals, teamed brilliantly with Paul Hallahan, Phil McGuinness and Chigwidden to constantly unbalance Central with his pace and skill.

Top-placed Central threatened to destroy Glenelg with a positive opening to the second term, but was betrayed by full forward Michael Wakelin, who kicked three points in as many minutes from set shots. The former defender had collected 2.6 by half-time, posing a striking contrast to smooth-finishing Glenelg's 11.1 in the first half. But he kicked four goals without a miss in the second phase.

Central was stunned by the Tigers' fierce attack on ball and body. Half-back Rohan Waugh mirrored Viska's approach to team with David Strooper, Simon Angove and Simon Hele in defence.

Grant Reubenicht, shadowing wingman Stephen Schwerdt, stifled the Central playmaker's influence as MacGowan became frustrated with Viska's constant attentions.

The classy Bulldog was taken from the ground during the third term with slight body soreness.

Central would have been in a more parlous position if not for supreme defensive work by Hugh Reimers, Brian Haraida, Roy Laird and Ray Windsor. The quartet, troubled by Glenelg's attacks, heaved gilt-edged opportunities at their forwards and might have expected more.

Peter Green, Jim Wynd and hard-hitting Craig Potter strived diligently and were eventually rewarded when Jarrod Cotton, Wakelin, Damian Hicks and Luhrs catapulted the 'Dogs back into the lead in the third term.

Damian Arnold bettered Stewart McCully to give Wynd a host of opportunities. The former Fitzroy rover punched a number of chances in Wakelin's direction before Glenelg could regroup - to trail by a point at the last change.

The last term saw Central continue to exert its superiority, grinding fragile Glenelg into submission with a 6.5 to 2.0 haul.
