Honour board recognises more than just the select few like a Hall of Fame

CENTRAL District used a devastating third quarter effort to conquer Glenelg by 15 points at Gliderol Stadium last night.

The Bulldogs, goal-less in the first term, overpowered a disappointing Tigers in the third to even their ledger with a win and loss after two games.

The Tigers were unable to match the Bulldogs' hunger for the fight in the third and they dropped their third successive game to start the season after trailing by as many as 42 points. In control early, the Tigers dominated possession in the opening quarter and that was reflected on the scoreboard as they built a handy 17-point buffer in a tight contest.

Matthew Snook and Sam Lonergan got their hands to plenty of ball to provide the spark in the engine room.

There was plenty of congested, scrappy action with the Bulldogs, who lost co-captain Trent Goodrem and key forward Bryce Retzlaff before the game with injuries, working hard to quell the dangerous Tigers outside run.

As was the case in the loss to Norwood last week, the Bulldogs lacked authority in attack and had issues with skills finishing off deep in the forward line. That aided the Tigers defence and it was able to constantly defuse Bulldogs raids.

It took 11 minutes into the second quarter for the Bulldogs to register their first goal. They needed only 30 seconds to grab their second. Four minutes later they had a third.

The Bulldogs upped the ante in the third quarter with their fierce, relentless attack on the body and ball and they were richly rewarded.

The Tigers responded in the fourth term — but couldn't bridge the gap.

As the Adelaide Football Club prepares to honour a privileged few at its inaugural Hall of Fame dinner next week, a much more modest affair at Glenelg Oval last night celebrated football's most important principle: Team!

The Glenelg Football Club last night unveiled its Wall of Fame.

It is a massive honour board fixed to the northern end of the main change-room.

On it are the names of every player who has played for the Bays.

Be it Ray Hinton for his one game in 1960 or Peter Carey for his 448 games over 18 years, their names are there.

One thousand and sixty-one names, including Bryce Woolard who played his first game for the Tigers last night, are there in gold on black.

It has been an incredible feat of historical research, undertaken by Peter Cornwall, who collaborated with several other football historians, to identify and collate the names and the dates.

The project developed from the one simple premise: any one who has been good enough to play a game for the Glenelg Football Club deserves to be recognised.

That, of course, is the one major flaw with Halls of Fame.

The privileged few are recognised, their records and reputations are preserved for football posterity, and the others, who at any one moment could have been vital to a club's success, fade into the shadows of a club's history.

Every name means something different to those looking at it.

Some leap off the board, others are more modest, but every one has a story to tell.

There are three Test cricketers up there: Merv Waite, David Sincock, and one of the greatest of all: player number 276, Keith Ross Miller, who made his debut in 1942.

There are so many untold stories, particularly in this week leading up to ANZAC Day.

In 1933 Clem Rosewarne kicked 11 goals in his first game for the Bays and would surely have played alongside his brother Reg in Glenelg's first premiership the following year.

Unfortunately South Adelaide claimed that he was zoned residentially to them and he was forced play for the Panthers.

Then the war years took him away.

He fought at Tobruk, El Alamein, in Syria, then back to New Guinea — Finschhafen and Lae — where some of the fiercest fighting took place.

A true Aussie warrior, he played just 11 games for Glenelg but sired one of Glenelg's greats, Laurie, and his brother Geoff.

Their names are all up there.

Not all the stories can be told because time has swallowed them but the names are there.

If you played for Glenelg, you have not been forgotten.

One thousand and sixty-one names ... are there in gold on black.
